Location

Hakodate is located in the southern tip of Hokkaido, which is the large northern island of Japan. Rome, Chicago, New York and Shenyang are among cities located at approximately the same latitude.

The average temperature in Hakodate is around 10 °C annually, and from around -2°C to 3°C in January and February. We have the first snow around November, and it snows until the end of March. The average temperatures in July and August are below 25°C with low humidity. It is comfortable even in summer.

History

In modern times, Hakodate opened as one of the first international trade ports in Japan, which resulted in the fast adoption of Western culture. The area and surrounding areas maintain a congenial blend of Japanese and Western cultures.

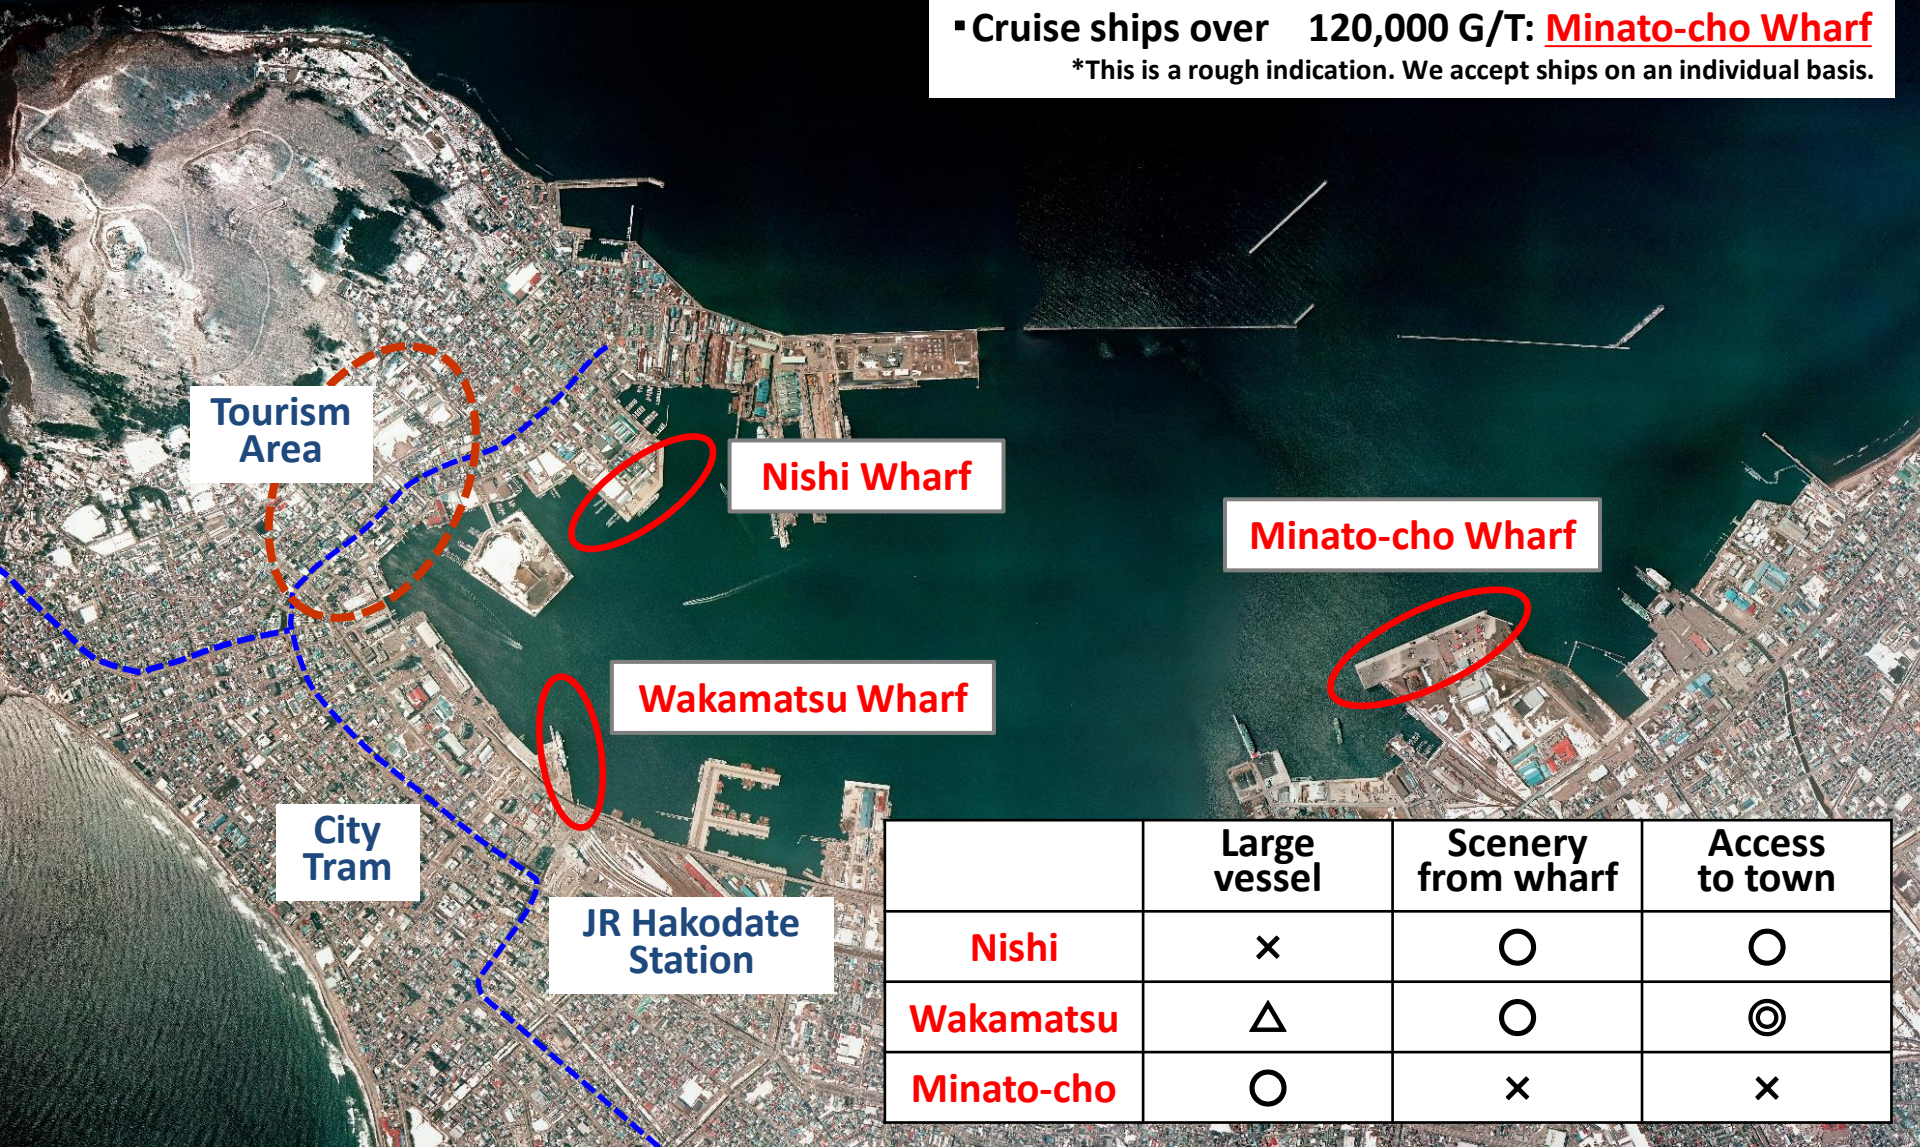

*Commodore Matthew C. Perry of USA came to our port to open Japan!
He appreciated that Port of Hakodate was as good as Gibraltar.*

Natural Environment

This is a good natural port.

- ✓ Average wind speed: 3.5m/s
 - ✓ Average tidal level: +0.583m
 - ✓ Calmness in harbor: The rate that wave height exceeds 0.5m is under 0.5%.
- The inner side of the harbor keeps calm almost all through the year, so anchoring is possible!
